

The New York Times

Food in Art, And on the Plate

By Florence Fabricant

Published: June 20, 2016

Food shows up frequently in art.

WHETHER PHARAOHS' TOMBS OR WARHOL'S paintings, food shows up frequently in art. Now Judith Walsh, who runs Art Smart museum tours, is offering a food-themed tour at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. And after the visit, participants can choose a meal that reflects the work. The meals are served either at the Aldo Sohm Wine Bar, 151 West 51st Street, where the food is paired with wine and beer, $120 for two ($60 a person for larger groups), or at Amali, 115 East 60th Street, where a six-course dinner for four to 20 guests is $100 a person, with wine extra: Feast Your Eyes Tours, $175 an hour for up to five people, in addition to dining costs, 212-595-4444, artsmart.com.

